THE WEEK IN EDMONTON

Edmonton, December—Appointment of D Bruce MacMillan, M. L. A. to the portfolio of Minister of Agriculture in the provincial government has been widely approved by many public and private citizens. Forty years a resident of Alberta, a farmer and grain buyer for 30 years and a veteran of the Great War the minister brings a wealth of right experience to his new post. He was sworn in on Tuesday last, and made immediate preparations to take over his departmental duties.

Government officials joined with all citizens this week in lauding the young farmers who brought to the province the world's wheat and oats crowns from the Chicago show. By winning participation for three years, but Alberta agriculturists are confident that another citizen of the of the province will show the best wheat next year.

Alberta also made a good showing in the live stock classes, Robin Hood 1,245 lb. shorthorn from the University of Alberta winning the reserve grand championship. J. Charles Youell, of Carstairs, Alberta, was steer judge at the show. Further wins recorded by Albertians came in the reserve championship, for field peas, won by James A. Herlihy of Edmonton, and third for small yellow field peas won by L. Hendrigan, of Winfield.

Canadian soldiers in Britain now have free access to the only covered ice skating rink in the country as a result of Y. M. C. A. efforts, it was announced by Reg F. Rose of the Edmonton "Y" this week. Opened as part of the regular "Y" war auxiliary service, the rink is expected to provide ample opportunities for hockey, said Mr. Rose. Two new centres are being opened at Sussex, N. B. and Debert, N. S. to serve troops quartered at those points.

War auxiliary services operated by the Y. M. C. A., knights of Columbus, Salvation Army and the Canadian Legion and other organizations are adding much to the comfort and entertainment of the armed forces, said Lieut.-Col. E. A. Descon, deputy director of auxiliary services for Canada when he visited Edmonton this week. He stopped in the city in the course of an inspection tour from coast to coast. Soldiers, sailors and airmen will benefit still more from local and national co-ordination of these auxiliary services, he declared. "From coast to coast splendid volunteer work is being done for members of the armed forces. They appreciate it," said the inspector.

MORE TIME FOR DAVIS DAM

Mr W. H. Davis, a farmer of the Chinook district, has been notified by the Water Resources Office that an extension of time for the completion of the irrigation dam on his farm has been granted until the end of July, 1941, in view of the serious accident he met with while harvesting in September.

The dam which "Bill" hopes to build is on the I. F. R. A. plan and will be the first of its kind in this district. He has had many arguments with friends as to the feasibility of conserving the run off water in the spring to irrigate small feed acreage, and now he intends to show 'em. He says that example is better than precept.

"Bill" has had wide experience. He started as a clerk, became an N. G. O. in the Sherwood Foresters, tried his hand at teaching school, and finally wound up as a farmer.

LOCAL NEWS

The regular meeting of the Chinook branch of the Red Cross which was to have been held on Wednesday Dec 18th has been cancelled.

Mr and Mrs. O. D. Harrington are in Calgary visiting this week.

Mr. G. Ray Robison left on Tuesday morning for Calgary where he will visit for a short time with his two daughters, Dorothy and Ruth and he will also spend a week or two with his daughter, Mrs. Peyton at Brooks.

The Ladies' Card Club met Tuesday evening at the Hotel with Mrs. Barros as hostess. Honors were shared by Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Aitken. The Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Jas. Aitken next week.

These winter evenings are cold, but some of our young folks don't seem to mind. They still seem able to enjoy their moonlight walks

Why is it that all the boys always need a haircut on Tuesday evenings, just when the Hill-Billies are on.

Sickness seems to be quite prevalent in the garage. What can be the cause of all this?

Wedding dances, such as the one held here last Friday, are always enjoyed by all - some times too much.

The holiday spirit has been revived. It used to promote Intermediate students to break rulers and ink bottles, and now it incites riots in the High School, in which a poor, inoffensive little algebra book took an awful beating. Tsk, tsch, tsch.

War Without Gloves

Before this winter is over, the people of this continent are likely to witness a good deal of high pressure Nazi-inspired propaganda designed to persuade the citizens of the United States and probably Canada as well to exert pressure on Great Britain to ease her naval blockade of European ports to prevent starvation among the people subjugated by Hitler and his Nazi thugs.

Of course, if such a propaganda campaign is attempted, and it is likely to be, its source may be expected to be skilfully hidden. The seeds will be secretly planted—perhaps already are being sown, in what the sponsors hope will be fertile soil, influential executives of organizations devoted to humanitarian purposes, and efforts will no doubt be made to press in to service all the agencies of Christianity and human welfare.

The object, of course, will be to endeavor to roll up a vast body of public opinion whose mission will be to persuade those in charge of the prosecution of our war effort, that the peoples of the German-conquered countries are being starved to death; that the health and morale of the survivors are being permanently undermined and that it is the duty of Great Britain to alleviate the suffering of these innocent people by allowing sufficient food to reach them to prevent an irreparable disaster, and to do so in the interests of "suffering humanity."

Under-nourishment Probable

On the face of it, it seems probable that the means, the Nazi under-nourishment and perhaps starvation among the subjugated European nations this winter, but the degree to which this condition exists will be difficult to determine with any great degree of accuracy as long as Nazi censorship controls the information available from these countries.

In view of the Nazi doctrine of the end justifying the means, the Nazi policies of total warfare and complete ruthlessness towards civilian populations as well as every fighting force, of the doctrine of government by suppression and frightfulness, it is a reasonable assumption that even if there is enough food to sustain the entire population of Continental Europe at subsistence level, the Germans will take the best of it, first for their own fighting forces and secondly, for their own civilians and the remainder can shift for themselves. This would be quite in line with their professed belief that the Germans are super people and must be strengthened and perpetuated at the expense of all others. Other nationals should be reduced to hovers of wood and drawers of water for their overloads or should not be allowed to encumber the earth at all.

Suppose the British should yield to pressure to permit supplies of foodstuffs to get through to the suffering victims of Nazi aggression under the most solemn Nazi guarantees that the food would reach the people for whom it is intended and that it would not be diverted to provide additional stimulus and sustenance for the armed forces and the nation which, seeking to destroy the British Empire and democracy, the history of Hitler and his Nazi cohorts already affords ample and overwhelming testimony of the value of such promises and guarantees, from such sources.

Aid For Nazis

If the Nazis find, in course of time, that the British blockade increasingly impedes their war effort, as undoubtedly it will, it will be quite in keeping with their character and their avowed doctrine to see to it that stories of terrible sufferings of the subjugated nations reach the outside world and particularly the people of this continent in the hope that this strategy would have the desired result of a free flow of needed foodstuffs for the aid and comfort, not of the Nazi bondsmen but of the Nazis themselves.

Even if there were some truth in such stories, and it is quite possible that there may be, it would be an easy matter to exaggerate them in degree and scope to appeal to the well known sentimentality of the American people and to create a feeling of horror and pity in the minds of the Canadian people.

The people of this country must not, however, be blinded by compassion for suffering innocent people, into forgetfulness that if these conditions exist this winter among the subjugated people, that the responsibility is entirely that of Hitler and his Nazi minions. In taking over these countries against their will, the Germans have made themselves responsible for their welfare until such time as they can be liberated and are put in the position of fighting for themselves once again.

The war cannot be speedily terminated by playing into the hands of the enemy. And with an enemy of the type which the democracies are today facing war must be waged without gloves.

No Apple Shipments

Great Britain Puts Ban On Shipments This Winter

No Canadian apples will go to Great Britain in this winter of the war.

At Manchester, England, Lord Woolton, the British food administrator, announced no fresh fruit except oranges would be imported this year.

Col. R. L. Wheeler, fruit expert at the department of agriculture, said the department had anticipated for some weeks that no apples would be shipped to the United Kingdom.

Lord Woolton also hinted at a reduction in the bacon ration for Britishers. The bacon board at Ottawa has no word of this and is still shipping its $3,176,000 pounds a week under the contract running to November next which calls for a total of 425,600,000 pounds.

The Royal Soldier

Story About King Christian Of Denmark And The Nazi Flag

King Christian of Denmark recently laid down the law to a German officer in an argument over display of the Nazi flag in that occupied country, according to the Göteborg newspaper Handels-och Sjöfarts-Tidning.

The King noticed the banner flying over an official building and complained to the German officer that this was contrary to the treaty between Denmark and Germany.

The officer replied that the flag was flown according to instructions from Berlin.

"The flag must be removed before 12 o'clock, otherwise I will send a soldier to do so," the monarch declared.

Five minutes before twelve the flag was still flying. The King said he was about to send a soldier to take it down.

"The soldier will be shot," the officer replied.

"I am the soldier," the King said, calmly.

The Nazi flag was lowered.

Farmers In Britain Do Not Think Much Of Scarecrows

Scarecrows soon will be extinct in Great Britain according to answers made to a questionnaire sent out from London. Prominent agriculturists were openly scornful of this ancient institution. Not much good and then only for a day or two; and "Undoubtedly useful if you move it every half hour or so" were the kind of replies received. A boy with a rattle is worth them all, said some.

Powerful Airplane Engine

Will Wipe Out Advantages Enjoyed By German Fighters

Great Britain is pushing production of an engine intended to wipe out an advantage enjoyed by German fighters for several months, and at the same time is making progress with the manufacture of a two-seater fighting plane of exceptional striking power. The engine, designed to give a higher ceiling and therefore a greater advantage, is one of the Merlin family of Rolls Royce aircraft motors. More highly super-charged for altitude flying than its predecessors, it is already in service in Spitfire fighters.

A recent despatch from London, recounting the destruction of a German fighting plane by two Spitfire pilots at an altitude above 30,000 feet, mentioned the inability of the Nazi Messerschmitt to climb high enough to elude its enemies.

The same engine will be made available to the manufacturers of the Hurricane type fighting plane which, with the Spitfire, has carried the brunt of the defence work in the battle of Britain.

Bomb Removal Squad Takes Hazardous Work In Their Stride

A London Daily Sketch van driver was in a great hurry to catch a train with his load of newspapers. But he was turned off his usual route by a rope stretched across the road bearing that now familiar notice: "Danger—Unexploded Bomb." With a screech of brakes he pulled up, wrenching the van round, and was racing back the way he had come when he met another lorry hurtling along. "Hey, mate, there's a time bomb down there," he yelled. "You'll be able to come back this way. We're just going to take it away." And on pounded the bomb removal squad.

Life On Channel Islands

Man Who Escaped Tells Of Conditions Under German Occupation

George Turner is one fellow who would rather stay in bomb-blasted London than return home. He escaped to London from German-occupied Jersey in the Channel Islands.

Turner, 58-year-old bachelor, who made his living growing tomatoes and potatoes, decided to remain when the Germans came but got so "fed up" with their boasting and appropriation of private property that he escaped with seven other men and a girl in an Irish ship.

"About 300 Germans were the first to arrive," he told a reporter. "I went on working until two Germans came and wanted to know whether my house was my property. They went in, opened drawers and took £63 ($279) saying I would get a receipt and be given marks to that value. When I went to an office in the town I got nothing."

"The Germans were quite nice and courteous and did not lay a finger on me but the next morning three more arrived, picked all my fruit and tomatoes and took them away. I asked them about the money and they said 'That will be all right.' I never received anything."

"They took all the flour in the island and commiserated the hotelier, billeted themselves there and emptied the cellars."

Turner said the invaders took food from boarding houses and warehouses, removed all the women's lineries from the dry goods stores and helped themselves to jewelry. They told residents the islands would belong to Germany for ever and Ribbentrop "would be the boss for Germany in England."

"The islanders are frightened," he added, "because they do not know what is going on as they are not allowed to receive news or possess a radio. If the Germans see anyone hanging about they put them to work in the fields. The banks are closed and there are no cinemas."

Producers Were Grateful

Sirens Provided Noises For Spooky Film Made Near London

A spooky film was being made near London. In this a scene is shown. Weird noises were sought and, after much preliminary work, shooting of the scene began. Almost immediately the sirens went. What Mr. Churchill calls the "Banishes howling" made such an uncanny noise that the producers were delighted. They felt they should send a donation to the Government for this unexpected help, reports the London Daily Sketch.

Boys Stopped Their Truck To Save A Frightened Squirrel

Hilliard Foley tells this story in Our Dumb Animals:

Recently two youths in a large, speedy truck came hurrying along a wooded driveway. Rounding the bend, they were speeding up a bit when a frisky black squirrel dashed out from a tree into the roadway. The little fellow was halfway across when he saw that the truck was almost upon him. He turned, hesitated, made to race back, and became panicky. A man looking on held his breath. The squirrel was caught, too late to escape.

But the boys in the truck had seen as well. The brakes screeched on, the truck stopped, the squirrel scampered away, chattering vociferously. The boys drove off, grinning. The man looking on grinned as well. But the man did more than grin. He described the "small happening" in a touching letter to the Ottawa Citizen, expressing deep thankfulness for having seen this act of kindness and offering the belief that "the cause of freedom would be safe in the hands of just such lads."

Seldom Visits London

Queen Mary Does Not Make Usual Trips These Days

Queen Mary is now resident in Western England. At first she used to visit London once or twice a week. But since the intensification of the air war her visits have become less frequent. It is reported that the two children of the Duke and Duchess of Kent are with her. War is a familiar thing to the Queen. Many British soldiers remember the 16-hour days she put in 25 years ago. Now she is again playing her part. She daily visits army hospitals, canteens and her maid precaution centres, and her tall, regal figure is a familiar sight to Cockney children who have been evacuated to her district. In her rambling old country house there is an air-raid shelter, but it is understood she has never used it yet.

British Embassy At Paris

Filed By Nazis And Swastika: Files From Flagpole

The Palace of the Elysee, home of the President of the French Republic, and the British Embassy stand each in their gardens in the Rue St. Honoré, Paris. What has happened to them since the Nazi occupation of Paris? queries a writer in the London Daily Sketch, who has learned that a caretaker is the only person in the Elysee Palace. A detachment of Nazi soldiers led by an officer marched into the building some weeks ago, but after inspecting all the rooms decided to leave the place empty. They then visited the British Embassy, where the rooms were systematically rifled. To satisfy a puerile vengeance the Gestapo gave orders for the swastika to be flown from the flagpole. The British Embassy is British property normally administered by the Office of Works.

A FEW POINTERS TO LIVE STOCK SHIPPERS

(Lethbridge Experimental Station) Stockyards throughout the country are scenes of great activity these days with a good many animals going up and down the loading chutes. It is important to buyer and seller alike that animals arrive at their destination in the best possible condition but unfortunately losses due to high shrinkage, injuries and deaths are all too prevalent. If a few simple precautions are taken, most of the losses can be prevented.

Before shipping, feeds of a non-laxative nature such as good quality timothy or alfalfa hay should be fed. Animals should be fed and watered regularly and allowed their normal fill right up until shipping time. The practice of trying to obtain an abnormally large fill usually leads to digestive disturbances resulting in loss of weight.

The most common cause of shipping losses are bruising due to horns, rough handling and improper fitting of cars. Any farmer that does not dehorn his cattle is subject to a penalty of a dollar a head so that he has every reason to see that this important operation is performed on all commercial cattle. Cars of mixed stock should always be provided with proper partitions and care taken to see that no nails or sharp corners are left as possible sources of injury.

Overloading of cars may lead to severe losses especially in stormy weather. Standard stock cars, which are 36 feet long and 8 feet wide, will accommodate approximately the following numbers of the various classes of stock: 25 head of fat cattle at 1,000 pounds, 85 to 100 ewes, 105 lambs at 85 pounds and 70 to 85 hogs at 200 pounds. The freight rate on grade or commercial animals is charged on a hundred-weight basis on a stated minimum for each class of stock so that overloading is economical but the above figures should not be greatly exceeded under any circumstances. Overcrowding is especially dangerous in the case of hogs. Purebred animals for which the pedigree certificate is submitted, may be shipped at half the regular rate.

Shrinkage in transit varies widely and has often led to misunderstandings and loss to shippers. Hogs will show a net shrinkage, based on fed watered weights, of about 3 per cent after a journey of 24 to 36 hours. Lambs, because they respond less to feeding at the stockyards will shrink anywhere from 4 per cent to as high as 8 per cent for the same period. Well finished grain fed cattle will shrink from 3 to 5 per cent in a 24 to 36 hour trip but old thin and grass fattened cattle will shrink considerably more. With all classes of stock, a proportionately higher shrinkage occurs during the first 24 hours than during further travelling.

Lavish criticism has been directed at the Alberta Wheat Pool because it issued an advertisement suggesting that one result of the war would be a general change in economic conditions.

Geoffrey Crowther, editor of The Economist, an outstanding British financial newspaper, writing in The New York Times, predicts the very same thing. He comes to the conclusion that "the citizen of a democracy should be guaranteed not merely his political liberties but also the economic minimum without which the pursuit of happiness is merely an empty phrase."

This conclusion is startling different to what The Financial Post of Toronto thinks. But it shows a definite trend of thought throughout the Mother country which unquestionably will spread all over the world.

Mr. Crowther goes on to say:

"In this conception of a Bill of Human Rights the individual would be guaranteed, merely by virtue of his citizenship, a certain minimum of food and clothing and shelter. He would be assured of a sufficiency if he failed, through any of the accidents of life such as unemployment, old age or injury, to be able to earn his own living. Whatever his economic standing, he would have access to full and careful medical attention. He would, have education to develop all his capacities. Above all, the community would see to it that the blessing of children did not march hand in hand with the curse of poverty; every parent would be assured of the wherewithal to provide his children with the elementary necessities of life. . . Nor would such a national minimum be too costly for the community to bear. At a rough calculation, such a minimum standard of living would absorb about half of the national income in Great Britain and probably about the same proportion in the United States. It is surely not too much to suggest that the first half of the community's income should go to insuring a minimum standard of decent living for its citizens."

There should be no more charity implied in it than is implied in the right of habeas corpus. The proposal is that the Bill of Political Rights should be supplemented by a Bill of Economic Rights, so that the democracies could proclaim to the whole world, 'These are the unequal advantages of citizenship in a democracy.' What can be offered in their place by rival systems where wealth and freedom alike are swallowed up by the tyranny of force?"

SMALL FORTUNE IN LIVE FOXES

MONCTON, Nov. 18—A small fortune in platinum foxes left Moncton recently in a Canadian National Express car for fur farms in the provinces of Ontario and Alberta. The consignment of live platinum foxes, which is valued at over $100,000 is from Colpitts Ranches at Sallisbury, N.B., on which they were bred and raised. These platinum foxes, it is understood, will be crossed with the so-called white face or ring-necked foxes. The Colpitts Ranches, one of the most extensive fox breeding organizations in the world, claim to have 85 per cent of Canada's platinum foxes.
